

PATCH PHRASES

Manager's Note...

Hello and welcome to this month's Patch Phrases. We hope you're all spending some time out in the sun with your friends and families this summer. This month we look into how our Art Department works with the customer to revise and edit a first draft of a patch design. Please refer to the first article of this series in last month's "From Idea to Draft."

This month Symbolix Patches will be attending Scout Expo 2007 at the Santa Anita Racetracks on June 2, 2007 in Los Angeles, California. If you're in the area please stop by and say hello!

We hope you enjoy this article and find it helpful in clarifying our patch making process.

Best Regards,

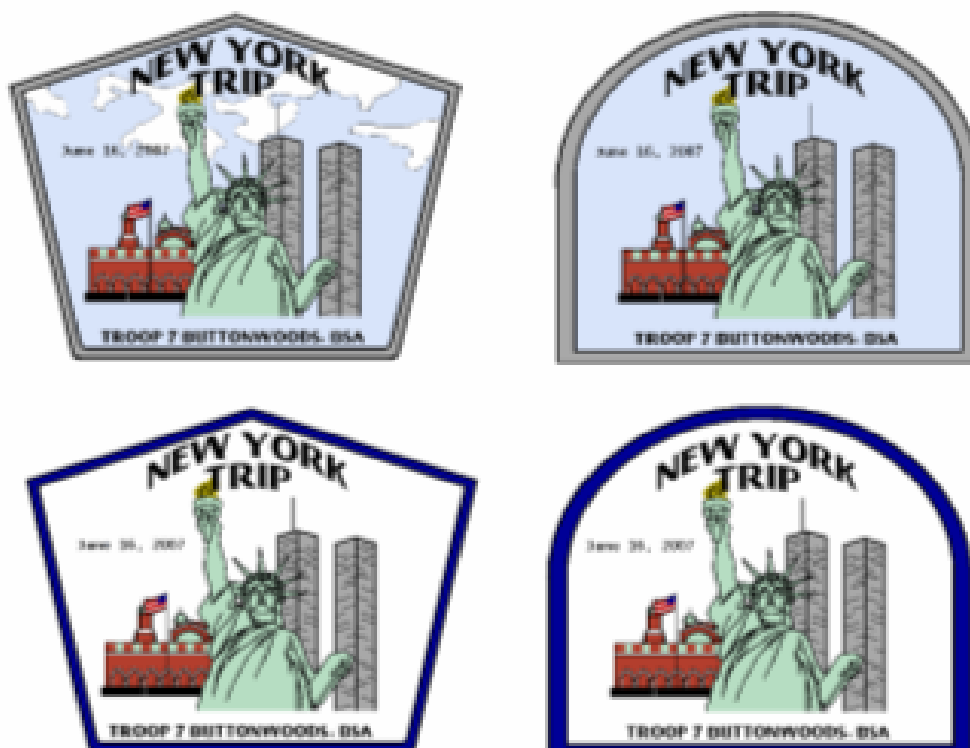

Shawn Hsu

The Patch Process: From Draft to Final Revision

The Revision process of your artwork varies from customer to customer. This is the point in time where we will ask for your suggestions on how to alter the artwork to your liking. Symbolix Patches offers unlimited revisions until you are satisfied. Although to expedite the process, to see multiple types of changes, the best way is to notify us all at once. We can offer multiple drafts of different versions to you all in a single draft. This will save time and help us get your patches to you sooner.

Example: To give our customer further options, our artist created several versions on the same draft. You could ask to see your design in a different shape or color for comparison

Stay tuned next month for, From Final Revision to Final Product!
